INTRODUCTION L.L.C. ("Crisis Manag

I.

Defendant Crisis Management, L.L.C. ("Crisis Management"), an Arizona limited liability company, offers assistance to individuals relative to the current mortgage crisis. Crisis Management uses the domain name "www.walkawayplan.com" to market its services on the Internet and the name "The Walk Away Plan" to describe the plans it tailors for each of its customers. Plaintiff You Walk Away, L.L.C. ("You Walk Away") alleges that it owns the name and mark "You Walk Away" and that Crisis Management's use of the name Walk Away Plan and the www.walkawayplan.com domain name infringe on its claimed trademark rights. On March 14, 2008, Crisis Management filed suit in the United States District Court for the District of Arizona seeking a declaration that its use of the Walk Away Plan name and mark and the www.walkawayplan.com domain name does not infringe on You Walk Away's rights. A true and correct copy of the Complaint filed in the action styled Crisis Management, L.L.C. v. You Walk Away, L.L.C., District of Arizona Case No. CD-08-0504-PHX-FJM, is attached to the Declaration of James S. Rigberg ("Rigberg Decl.") as Exhibit "1."

On March 21, 2008, You Walk Away commenced this lawsuit, seeking to enforce its alleged trademark rights in the name You Walk Away. Under the "first-to-file rule," this action should be transferred to the United States District Court for the District of Arizona where it can be consolidated with the pending lawsuit brought by Crisis Management.

II.

BACKGROUND

By letter dated February 29, 2008, counsel for You Walk Away advised Crisis Management that You Walk Away claimed ownership of the name and mark You Walk Away and the domain name www.walkawayplan.com. A true and correct copy of the February 29, 2008 letter is attached to the Rigberg Decl. as Exhibit "2." The same letter further advised that the You Walk Away mark was the subject of a pending trademark application. Counsel for You Walk Away demanded that Crisis Management cease using the name and mark Walk Away Plan and the domain name www.walkawayplan.com within ten days, otherwise You Walk Away would file suit.

On or about March 8, 2008, a representative of You Walk Away telephoned Crisis

1 2 Management, inquiring as to whether Crisis Management would adhere to the demands made in the 5 6 7 8 9

February 29 letter. See Declaration of Paul Helbert at ¶ 6. Helbert advised that he did not believe that Crisis Management's use of Walk Away Plan or www.walkawayplan.com infringed on You Walk Away's rights. See id. at ¶ 7. Helbert further advised that Crisis Management would be consulting an attorney to determine how to respond to You Walk Away's allegations, provided the name and phone number of his attorney, James Rigberg, and requested that You Walk Away communicate directly with Mr. Rigberg. Despite that request, You Walk Away representatives called Crisis Management several more times. See id. at ¶ 7. On March 14, 2008, Crisis Management consulted with its attorney and, later that day, filed a lawsuit against You Walk Away in the Arizona District Court. See id. at ¶ 8. One of Crisis Management's chief concerns was that it file an action before the United States Patent and Trademark Office approved You Walk Away's pending trademark application. See id. at ¶ 8.

ARGUMENT

When a "complaint involving the same parties and issues has already been filed in another district," the Court may decline jurisdiction in favor of allowing the earlier filed case to proceed. Pacesetter Systems, Inc. v. Medtronic, Inc., 678 F. 2d 93, 95 (9th Cir. 1982). This so-called "first-tofile" rule exists to serve "the purpose of promoting efficiency well and should not be disregarded lightly." Alltrade, Inc. v. Uniweld Products, Inc., 946 F. 2d 622, 625 (9th Cir. 1991) (quoting Church of Scientology v. U. S. Dep't of the Army, 611 F. 2d 738, 750 (9th Cir. 1979)). The parties and the issues in this case and the earlier filed case in the District of Arizona are identical. Under the firstto-file rule, the Court should dismiss, stay, or transfer venue over You Walk Away's action in this Court.

The facts presented in this case are similar to those in Seattle Pacific Industries, Inc. v. Levi Strauss & Co., 46 U. S. P. Q. 2d 1316, 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 22579 (W.D. Wa. 1997) (a true and correct copy of which is attached to the Rigberg Decl. as Exhibit "3"). By letter dated March 26, 1997, Levi Strauss threatened to sue Seattle Pacific Industries ("SPI") for trademark/trade dress infringement if SPI did not discontinue use of a certain label and stitching pattern. SPI responded with voicemail messages on March 28 and April 7, 1997, apparently indicating that it was going to continue using these items. By letter dated June 19, 1997, Levi Strauss again advised that, because SPI indicated that it intended to continue using the design, it had "no choice but to file a complaint." 1997 U.S. Dist. LEXIS at 4. On August 4, 1997, SPI brought a declaratory judgment action in Washington. Subsequently, Levi Strauss filed an infringement action in California.

Levi Strauss filed a motion to dismiss SPI's earlier filed declaratory judgment action, arguing that "SPI simply rushed to the courthouse to avoid the suit that Levi Strauss would bring in California." SPI responded that its case should proceed and that Levi Strauss could bring the infringement claims asserted in the California case as counterclaims. The Washington District Court agreed that "the first-to-file rule should not be abandoned except where there has been some bad faith or deliberate delays in order to accomplish forum shopping." 1997 U.S Dist. LEXIS at 6. The Court further agreed that the fact that SPI's lawsuit was for declaratory relief did not "weigh against" application of the first-to-file rule. 1997 U.S Dist. LEXIS at 5. Because no evidence of bad faith existed, the Court denied Levi Strauss' motion to dismiss based on the first-to-file rule.

Crisis Management seeks the same relief in its earlier filed Arizona District Court action as SPI did – a declaration that it is entitled to continue using certain marks. Crisis Management did not do anything deliberately to delay You Walk Away from filing an infringement action. For example, upon receipt of the February 29, 2008 letter, Crisis Management did not attempt to lull You Walk Away into inaction by representing that it agreed its Walk Away Plan marks may be infringing.

Instead, within ten days of receipt of the letter, Crisis Management advised that it did not believe its use of its marks infringed on You Walk Away's rights and that it would be contacting its attorneys to determine how to proceed. Promptly after retaining counsel – and only two weeks after You Walk Away sent its February 29, 2008 letter – Crisis Management filed suit to protect its right to continue using the Walk Away Plan marks. These are the precise circumstances for which the first-to-file rule expressly exists to address.

IV. CONCLUSION For the foregoing reasons, Crisis Management's Motion to Dismiss, Stay, and/or Transfer this action should be granted.
